

What is the work of the accounting office?

Some may imagine that the work or tasks of the accounting office are limited to one work, which is the report issued by it about its opinion on the financial statements and the extent of their validity and expression of the financial position of the company and the result of the activity as well as his opinion on the ability of the facility to continue, it is true that this is an essential role for the accounting office, but there are other important works also carried out by the accounting office, and the most important of these works following his report are the tax work that he undertakes for the facility, which are many and difficult to limit in lines Here, there is also the work of feasibility studies and financial consultancy, there is the work of corporate contracts and incorporation, there is the work of bookkeeping, and there is the evaluation work of the facility in its broad sense in the case of acquisition, annexation or merger, for example, these are some of the work of the accounting office and not a condition that all capabilities and expertise are available to all accounting offices to carry out these works, as some offices may practice part of the above or only review, and the sufficiency of some with one or more work does not mean denying the rest of the work in Other accounting offices or rejecting them, even if you see the work of the chartered accountant standing at the limits of your practice of this part only, all of them fall under the concept of accounting and financial services, and before I finish my words, I remind myself and you that there is etiquette and behavior of the profession that must be followed and maintained as maintained by the former and received from them, so the services of accounting offices should not be advertised by messages or on Facebook pages or WhatsApp or advertisements in public ways, for example.

And I ask God to bless everyone

Onsy Kamal El-Din
Public Accountants
محاسبون قانونيون